Suggestions and comments:
Main conclusions and suggestions for future ICM editions: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The overall assessment of the visits to ICM Partners was very positive, including their commitment with the project, the use of best-practices in student and staff mobility, as well as on the recognition procedures at the Partner HEI and double diploma at IPB.</li> <li>For the upcoming ICM editions, the IPB's professors and staff suggest: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>To improve the cooperation between the professors and researchers of IPB and Partners Institutions, the Programme Directors and Scientific Committees of the IPB's master and bachelor programmes should coordinate and promote the proposals for master thesis and bachelor final projects with cosupervision (one supervisor from IPB and one supervisor from the Partner HEI). A procedure to match similar supervisors' research interests should be implemented before the arrival of Partner students;</li> <li>The recognition of credits awarded by IPB at the Partner HEIs' study plans should be checked and measured at the end of the mobility period (to be assessed by IPB with Partners HEIs and the students involved);</li> <li>The use of video conference at the IPB's public master defences and bachelor final projects should be guaranteed to ensure their recognition at the Partner HEIs' study plans;</li> <li>The Partners' STA grants should be attributed to the master thesis/bachelor final projects' supervisors. The upcoming IPB meetings should continue to include seminars and supervision activities by these professors;</li> <li>The Partners' STT grants should be attributed to the deans, professors or non-teaching staff in charge with the ICM project management at the partner HEI, particularly the mobility tools and recognition procedures.</li> </ol> </li> </ol>
